The Management Company has adopted and regularly updates the Conflict of Interest, Insider Information and Personal Transaction Management Policy (hereinafter: Policy) to recognize and manage the risk of potential conflicts of interest, that is, to avoid it, prescribing the basic principles of action to be adhered to by the employees, managers and management of the Management Company, that is, activities that are contrary to or in conflict with duties of employees, as well as activities to avoid in order to avoid conflict with the interests of the Company and the interests of the members of the investment funds managed by the Company.

The main goals of the stated policy are as follows:

- establishment of high standards of business conduct for relevant persons and business transparency;
- identifying potential and/or existing conflicts of interest that may arise when managing investment funds;
- determining preventive measures and procedures for prevention or elimination of conflict of interest;
- regulating the conflict of interest resolution process in situations where it is not possible to apply preventive measures.

The conflict of interest management policy establishes that the conflict of interest means any situation that may arise during the performance of the fund management activities by the Management Company in which the interests of the Management Company and its relevant persons (e.g. heads, managers and employees) and of all persons closely related to them are contrary to or conflict with the client's interests, or the clients' interests are in conflict with each other.

During fund management by the Management Company, a conflict of interest may arise between:

- the interest of the Management Company, the relevant person and all persons closely related to them, on the one hand, and the interests of the Management Company's client (the fund managed by the Company), on the other hand;
- the interests of different Management Company's clients.
- The interests of the Fund and other investment funds/fund members (more specifically, Interests of the AIF or Members of that AIF and another AIF or members of another AIF, AIF or Members of that AIF and another client of the Management Company,

In principle, a conflict of interest is considered existing in situations where the Management Company, relevant persons and/or persons closely related to them, as a result provision of services or for other reasons:

- are likely to make a financial gain or avoid a financial loss to the detriment of the Fund or its investors;
- have an interest in the outcome of a service or activity provided to the Fund or to another client or transactions performed on behalf of the Fund or another client which differs from the interests of the Fund, the client or group of clients or another AIF relative to the interest of the AIF, the interest of one client relative to the interest another client or group of clients in the same AIF;
- have a financial or other motive to put the interest of another client or group of clients before the interests of the Fund;
- perform the same activities for the Fund and for another client or clients other than clients of the Fund;
- receive or will receive from a person other than client of the Fund an additional incentive in connection with joint portfolio management activities performed for the Fund in the form of cash, commodities or services other than the usual commission or fee for that service.

When defining a conflict of interest, the Management Company shall consider the Management Company's interests, including those arising from its belonging to a group or from the performance of services and activities, interests of client and obligations of the Management Company towards the Fund as well as the interest of two or more investment funds it manages.

While performing fund management activities, the Management Company and all relevant persons shall take care of circumstances that are a conflict of interests and refrain from situations in which there is doubt about the existence of a conflict of interest, or in case of learning or justified suspicion about a certain activity which could cause a conflict of interest.

To avoid conflicts of interest, it is foreseen that the Fund assets cannot be invested in securities and other financial instruments issued by the Management Company and persons closely related to them.

To avoid conflicts of interest between the Depositary, the Management Company and/or Fund and/or Fund member, no entity may act as a management company and as a depositary. In the sense of the above, the Depositary of the Management Company cannot be a person closely related to the Management Company.

XVII. PROCEDURES FOR PREVENTING ABUSE OF INSIDER INFORMATION AND MEASURES IN CASE OF ABUSE

Article 61

Insider information has the meaning defined by the law governing capital market.

Insider information is information that has the following characteristics:

- information on precisely determined facts,
- not published,
- directly or indirectly refer to one or more financial instrument issuers or to one or more financial instruments and
- if they were made public, they would probably have a significant impact on the price of those financial instruments or the price of related financial instruments.

Confidential Information – any confidential information relating to the operations of the Management Company, if relating to facts and circumstances that are not published, and is especially important from the organizational, economic, financial and strategic aspect, or is significant for the success of the Management Company's operations and value of its financial instruments – even though it does not have all the characteristics of insider information, in terms of accuracy and potential impact on the price of financial instruments, but can be deemed as such considering it may cause a conflict of interest.

In connection with persons responsible for fulfilling the orders related to financial instruments, insider information is also information about precisely determined facts obtained from the client regarding client's future orders, relating directly or indirectly, and which, if they were published, would probably have a significant impact on financial instrument prices, the price of related contracts for commodities on the spot market or the price of related derivative financial instrument.

Information is considered precisely determined (precise):

- if indicating a series of circumstances that exist or can be reasonably expected to exist, that is, an event that occurred or can reasonably be expected to occur,
- when specific enough to enable conclusions about the impact of such series of circumstances or events on the prices of financial instruments/related derivative financial instrument.

Such likelihood of significant impact is considered to exist if a reasonable client/fund member would probably consider such information as part of the basis for making investment decisions.

In accordance with the Capital Market Law, the Management Company adopted and regularly updates the Conflict of Interest, Insider Information and Personal Transaction Management Policy that put a system in place to prevent the misuse of insider information and will take measures in the event that such abuse occurs.

The above Management Company policy clearly defines the circle of relevant persons in the Management Company who own or can own an insider or confidential information as well as a general prohibition to use that information directly or indirectly during acquisition, disposal and attempted acquisition or disposal for one's own account or for the account of a third party of the financial instruments to which this information relates.

To fulfill the above purpose, the Management Company:

- keeps and updates the Register of relevant persons with access to insider information (Insider list) in which all persons who have access to insider information are registered.
- continuously ensures the restriction of information flow between different organizational units of the Management Company through the organizational aspect, that is, by functional separation of organizational units, primarily those in charge of investment funds asset management and investment funds asset valuation, both among themselves and from others organizational units;
- establishes an organizational chart and procedures that should prevent:
 - that the Fund assets are managed by any person other than the portfolio manager of that Fund
 - that valuation of the Fund's assets and reconciliation of such data with the depositary is performed by any person other than employees of valuation organizational unit.
- prescribes and ensures compliance with the basic standards and principles relevant persons with access to insider information shall comply with, including increased due care in terms of insider and confidential information management and taking all necessary preventive measures to suppress unnecessary dissemination and misuse of insider information (e.g. avoiding conversations about insider and confidential information in places where there are persons who should not know such information; caution when using mobile and landline phones; avoiding leaving documents containing insider or confidential information in easily accessible places (open space, printers and photocopiers); removal of documents containing insider or confidential information which is no longer needed and for which there is no longer any retention obligation, using document destruction devices, etc.).

The relevant persons of the Management Company shall keep as a trade secret and shall not use, communicate and enable third parties to use the following data:

- About the Fund or the Management Company that could create a false presentation of the business of the company, that is, the investment fund;
- future activities and business plans of the Management Company;
